A False Prophet

The last Olympia Standard contains an article in regard to the proposition to diminish mail facilities, in which we find the following:

> We have for some time past believed that a deliberate purpose was manifested by the heads of some of the Departments at Washington to render the administration of Mr Lincoln as odious as possible in this Territory It now appears they are trying to accomplish the same object elsewhere and if the Postmaster-General persists in his proposed reduction he will as surely defeat the Administration candidates in the approaching State election in Oregon as was the Union candidate for Congress defeated in this Territory by the "beef embargo"

We quote the above—coming as it does from the organ of Federal officials—to show the confession of the Standard, that the cause of Cole's election was not, as that paper has often falsely stated, anything done by the OREGONIAN, but was an act of the Treasury Department, and also to notice briefly the prophecy as to the defeat of the Administration candidates in this State We have no fear of any such result, even if all our postal privileges were taken away, as the Union sentiment of Oregon is far stronger and more deep rooted than to be effected by any merely local interests To be sure as the Standard acknowledges, it is a shame that the Department should be so regardless of our welfare, and it does sometimes seem as though there was a disposition to make trial of the faith and patience of Union loving supporters of the Administration, by such action and appointments as are exceedingly unpopular and mischievous But no one need imagine that anything of this sort will ever disturb their fidelity or weaken their patriotism They believe the fault is rather to be traced to inefficient Representatives who are either too indolent to attend to their duty, or too ignorant to know what it is, and this case can only be remedied by sending in their places men of zeal and ability who will watch and labor as well for the interests of Oregon, as for the honor, glory and perpetuity of the Union If in spite of their prompt efforts, the Departments at Washington continue to send incompetent or dishonest officials to this coast, or to deprive us of privileges which are reasonably claimed and which rightfully belong to the people here, redress will not be sought by any course like that suggested by the Standard, which that would place us in the ranks of disunion and Democracy.

ONE MORE TRIAL.—According to the last dispatches, it seems to be understood in the East, that the rebels will make one more desperate and agonizing effort to transfer the war to the Northern States Starved out on Southern soil, and nearly ready to submit or perish, they still have a lingering hope that their political allies in the free States may somehow rescue them from impending ruin, and draw them back from the edge of hell The frothy declamation of traitors in the North, lead them to imagine that a party flourishes there who will welcome them as brethren, and assist them in their work of desolation Doubtless their hopes would be realized if the cowardly traitors, who talk treason but dare not fight for it, could be induced to suppose that there was ghost of a chance for the rebellion to conquer the Government but as there is now not the remotest possibility that it can live any longer than will be required to slay or hang its leaders these modern Democrats will take no stock in any such concern, and the rebel army, if it comes, will find an other Gettysburg or be wholly captured

KENTUCKY SENATOR.—James Guthrie, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, is the most prominent of the Union candidates for the position of Senator, and on several ballots received the highest vote cast Ever since the rebellion commenced, he has been one of its most zealous opponents, and to him, perhaps as much as to any other man, is it owing that his State resisted the inducements which were held out, to constrain it to join the South in Secession His election would be gladly hailed, and we have no doubt that his experience and sagacity as a statesman, would be of great value to the nation

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION.—The Commissioner of Agriculture recommends to Congress the propriety of doing for weights and measures what it has done for the money of the United States—do away with the pounds of troy and avordupois weight, the twelve inches to the foot, and make 10 or 100 the unit for these, as it has done in our currency. The numeral figures are the same in all nations, hence it is said that in them alone should be the common standard of weight, measures and money Other nations would follow our precedent, and common standards would obtain throughout the commercial world

Trial of the Magruder Murderers

By the Golden Age we have full particulars of the trial conviction and sentence of that party known as "The Idaho Murderers" The jury was empanneled on the 20th of January when evidence was taken to prove several circumstances of the case such as the fact of Magruder having left Beaver Head, the time, etc The confession of Page being substantially all that was used in the conviction of these criminals, we give it entire

William Page [illegible]—[illegible] Magruder and Allen I was [illegible] there with Magruder's pack train he had [illegible] goods [illegible] I do not know how much they started [illegible] day of October; I stayed there about three [illegible] defendants were all there [illegible] they stayed part of the time in Magruder's store Howard and Romain slept in the store I stayed in Skinner's house Lower's [illegible] I do not know [illegible] considerable, he settled it before he left I went with Magruder, so did Howard, Romain Phillips and two brothers whose names are unknown [illegible] we started with some horses to [illegible] where Magruder's mules were some 14 [illegible] we left the horses and took the mules belonging to Magruder some 14 or 15 and traveled to [illegible] here we put up at a tavern and put the animals in a corral here we met Chas Allen [illegible] Bannock; we arrived at a place called [illegible] where Bill Bunton was keeping house [illegible] we met Lower, we turned the animals [illegible] took lunch; Howard and Romain had some business to attend to, something about some horses we left them with Lower at Laughn's and we went on to Bannack; when we was within two miles of Bannack, Magruder Allen and the two brothers went into town, and myself and Phillips went to a place called the Mormon ranch with the loose animals; Magruder told me to take good care of them which I did, he came out the next morning with [illegible] Beer, one of Capt. Fisk's officers he bought four mules of him and left them in my charge; the mules were branded U S; he then went back to Bannack and next morning came out with some more mules and we started the next morning early with 40 head of animals; there was nine of us—myself Lower, Howard Romain Phillips Allen, Magruder and the two brothers—26 mules belonging to Magruder, 6 mules and 1 horse to Allen 2 to Lower 1 to Howard, 1 to Romain 1 to myself and 2 to the two brothers after leaving the ranch we traveled 15 miles and camped on a small creek in a little prairie, and put out a guard to watch the animals—Allen and one of the two brothers went on the first watch, and Howard and the other brother on the morning watch traveled next day about [illegible] miles and camped on a bottom where there was some Indian lodge poles standing—Magruder and I were on the first watch we traveled about the same distance the next day and camped on a wide bottom—Allen and one of the brothers took the first watch and Howard and the other brother the morning watch traveled on the next morning, met a party of Frenchmen one named Ma[illegible] Bono they were acquainted with Magruder and Allen and shook hands and talked awhile then traveled on until evening and camped in heavy timber—Magruder and Lower on the first watch, Romain and myself on the morning watch next morning, after we had traveled a short distance we met two men one called Sailor Jack I had some talk with them they asked me about some men over at Beaver Head, when I caught up with the animals Lower told me to stop back, that Howard and Romain wanted to speak to me by myself Howard stated that Magruder had a good deal of money, and they meant to have it I had been sleeping by myself Howard and Romain wanted me to sleep with Phillips they told me not to be frightened, that they would do all the dirty work, and that if I heard any noise in the night to take no notice of it; they said that night they meant to have the money, Howard said if Philips should wake up that I must shoot him through the head but Romain said as I was not a very good shot I must gut him, we traveled on the remainder of the day, they riding up to me several times and telling me not to be frightened we camped at a little spring at the top of the mountain we passed a river that day running north and south supposed it to be Bitter Root river we turned our animals back on the road for good feed there was fir trees at this camp, it was a rocky country—Allen and one of the brothers took the first watch Howard and the other brother the morning watch, traveled next day some 30 miles, over very rough road about 2 o'clock we met a man, Magruder shook hands with him and talked awhile after he had gone past, they told me it was Mr Payne, U S. Marshal from Lewiston, Howard and Romain told me that this night they meant to have the money, they cautioned me several times through the day not to be frightened after crossing Clearwater river we came up a very steep trail about 6½ miles, here we camped under some large trees we turned our animals out to graze and got supper it was Magruder and Lower's turn to look after the animals the first watch after supper Lower went up the hill to see if the animals were all right, soon returned and stated that they were all right and said that he would take an axe up to make a fence across the trail build a fire and have a good time the remainder of the night, him and Magruder got ready to go up, Lower walking a little ahead with an axe in his hand Magruder told him a little previous to this, that one gun would do them and that he Lower, need not take any up when they got started up a few steps, Magruder looked back into camp, and then up at Lower some two or three times, and they went on up this is the last time I seen Magruder dead or alive those that were in camp went to bed as usual, I was awakened about the middle of the night, and heard something coming down the hill—supposed it was the watch to call me—I looked up and saw it was Howard and Lower Howard asked me if I was awake I nodded my head and said yes and they went and laid down on the blankets with Romain; Howard and Romain then got up and passed me each with an axe in his hand they had no boots coats, nor hats; they went in the direction where the two brothers were sleeping I soon heard several blows of the axes, and several long, mournful groans after a few moments they returned and laid down on the blankets with Lower again, in a short time Howard got up with a shot gun in his hands and went to the tent where Allen slept Romain passed my head with an axe in his hand, stopped about the centre of the blankets, and I commenced raising up he told me twice, in a low tone, to lay still at the corner of the tent in the shade the gun went off and Romain hit Phillips at the same time a very heavy blow with the axe, on the head Phillips screamed murder, but Romain laid on the heavier two or three times during this time I was putting on my clothes Romain called Phillips a s—n of a b—h, that he had no business to come along, that he told him not to come, Romain said that he wished that Jim Rhodes had come along, that he had wanted to kill him for a long time He then pointed his finger at me and said I was frightened that I was all a tremble, and he told me not to be frightened Howard called me Billy, and said don't be frightened, then said Uncle Billy don't be frightened, all the dirty work is done Howard shot Allen while he was asleep in his tent Lower then mended up the fire and made a big blaze that light could shine on Allen Howard took hold of him by the head and rolled it over—so that we could see that all the back part of the head was blown away—and said many a man would have shot him in the shoulder but he took good aim; put the gun up to the head and she was a beautiful gun done her work well, he told me to empty the pan-flesh (saddle bags made of raw hide) out that they carried the [illegible] and to be very careful that they were clean and see to putting in such stuff as we wanted and no more than was needed, while I was emptying and assorting the things, they complained that their feet were very wet and that they were very cold and wanted to put on some clean socks, and wished that I would go up the hill and see where the animals were I was to go a long way up and I would see a fire to the right hand of the trail Howard told me to mend up the fire, that there was where the job was done for Magruder I went up and seen the animals, and turned some of them back on the trail again when I got back they asked me if I fixed up the fire I told them yes and that it had got to running among the dry leaves and I got and that I put it out Lower told me that there was where the job was done for Magruder that I ought not to have put it out that he kicked it about in order to burn up the blood when I came down the hill they were all standing around the fire they said there was not as much money as they expected—they had searched the [illegible] hill and had tied Phillips and Allen up in [illegible] with a picket rope I helped to tie the two brothers up myself, and helped carry them on a [illegible] one end of the [illegible] Lower and Romain helped I don't remember which [illegible] the stick with me we laid them on a big flat rock on the brow of the hill ready to roll it in down the hill they told me to [illegible] and to pick out four or five picket ropes and two [illegible]

[illegible]

The case rested and court adjourned on the evening of the 22d The next morning the jury returned a verdict "That the prisoners David Howard, James P Romain and Christopher Lower are guilty of murder in the first degree, and the punishment shall be death"

TUESDAY, January 26.—The Court convened this morning at ten o'clock and the prisoners were brought in to receive their sentence when Judge Parks asked each one separately if they had anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon them Romain replied that injustice had been done him, as he had no time to get witnesses [illegible] and that he was innocent and hoped the great God would forgive them they were dyeing their hands in innocent blood He hoped that they would ferret out the truth of the affair with the same energy that they had to convict him, not on his own account, but for the sake of those far away Howard said I followed this man Page to Bitter Root and went with him to Beaver Head He is a bad man, he told you a long story part of which may be true, but the greater part is untrue, I believe you and the jury believe it is true Since I came to Idaho I have done no man any wrong I have violated no law, unless it be gambling I have found it hard to struggle against the consequences of a great trouble I got into I suppose the Court and you all know what that was and know how hard it is to struggle against such troubles but I have wronged no man, and my hands are innocent of the blood of Magruder, I never murdered Allen Magruder's widow and poor, fatherless children cannot raise their hands to Heaven crying for vengeance against me I know that God will bring this thing all to light, and that at some future time the true story will be told I do not ask you to believe me for I know that God in his own chosen time, will make all clear, I would rather be as I am a convicted felon and die an ignominious death than be in the place of Page I stand before the world innocent of this bloody deed, I have nothing more to say

The Judge then addressed the prisoners in substance as follows

THE SENTENCE

The duty which I am now called upon to perform is one of the most painful of my life I am to pronounce a sentence which will consign to an early and infamous death three young men, each in the prime of his life and strength A few years since you left your homes all respectable, all with useful and honorable occupations, all with high hopes, and all the objects of the love of relatives and friends You had more than ordinary energy and intelligence and might have made useful and influential men in your day and generation, been respected and upheld by all good citizens How different is the picture you present to day You are degraded and abandoned outcasts universally regarded as the implacable enemies of humanity, you have not only the Territory of Idaho, but all civilized society combined against you I do not say these things to reproach you, but from a sense of duty. Punishment is inflicted even upon the worst criminals, not in a spirit of vengeance nor to expiate or atone for their crimes, but to prevent such offenses in future, partly by taking away from them the power to do further mischief, but principally by deterring others by their example In this regard it is right that your lives and crimes should be commented upon, and your dreadful end held up as a warning to all evil doers

Your history demonstrates clearly the ruinous effects of idleness and bad company You abandoned your occupations to hang around saloons gambling houses and low haunts of vice You became the associates of gamblers and then gamblers yourselves As there is but a single step from gambling to stealing, you soon became thieves, then robbers, and then murderers of course And you have closed your career by one of the most awful tragedies ever recorded, one which, when it shall be known in its horrid details, will cause the ear of humanity to tingle

What a warning is this to all men, to follow respectable pursuits, and to avoid the haunts of vice and dens of the gambler Upon all these sinks of iniquity should be written, in letters of fire, "this is the way to hell—going down to the chambers of death"

Another thing your history illustrates, and the lesson should not be lost upon all men inclined to follow your [illegible] that there is no [illegible] to any man, in the commission of such crimes, no matter how wild or remote the place of commission You vainly thought, that by the murder of all your fellow travelers, you secured silence and safety You burned the blood of Magruder that it might not reveal your guilt but, like the blood of Abel it cried to God against you and the cry was heard and answered Providence has not imparted wisdom to guilt, and the very means employed by you to escape, led to suspicion pursuit, and detection It is a strange coincidence that your conduct first excited the suspicion of one of Magruder's friends, that he followed and brought you back here, that you have been tried and convicted close to the desolate home of the murdered man, and in sight and hearing of his widowed wife and orphan children The robber and murderer may learn from your fate that there is no safety for them and that the way of the transgressor is indeed hard If such men have expected impunity, in crime here, let them know now, that the reign of law and order has commenced, even in this remote region, that where bad men array themselves against society, they encounter a power which they can neither resist nor escape, and that the punishments of the law WILL be visited upon them

You have had a fair trial, and been legally convicted, and your punishment will be just It is my duty to tell you that there is no hope of pardon or escape The law gives you but few days to live Let me advise you to employ that time in making what reparation you can for the evil you have done, and in preparing for trial before that Great Judge, at whose bar you will soon stand whose laws, as well as those of man, you have violated whose goodness you have abused, and whose power you have defied And it will be the prayer of all good men that in your final trial, you may find a merciful Judge, and that your crimes—numerous and great as they have been—may be forgiven

The Judge then sentenced them to be hung by the neck on the 4th day of March, 1864, until they were dead After the judge had passed sentence Lower remarked that he hoped that God would forgive them all, as he did

ETHERIDGE REBUKED BY A KENTUCKY LOYALIST.—A Washington correspondent of the New Hampshire Statesman says: Emerson Etheridge was recently introduced to Brutus J Clay of Kentucky, and immediately began to denounce the Government Clay, after hearing his temper a few moments replied "Well Mr Etheridge this is pretty [illegible] Before the war while I was a Democrat I used to hear of you down in Tennessee as an Abolitionist You have lately changed your views" He was somewhat writhing under the retort [illegible] he had got a turn at this [illegible] He plucked up courage [illegible] another tirade Clay thereupon with a little [illegible] with nobleness and great rising to his full height interrupted, "Well sir, this is our first meeting Your language sir seems to me atrocious and all I [illegible] say to you is that when men talk thus down in Kentucky, we regard them as Secessionists and treat them accordingly"

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce writes that a curious and interesting discovery has just been made in the Department of State, bearing upon the boundary line between the State of Minnesota and the British provinces From time immemorial all the maps that have come before the public have represented the dividing line as barely touching the utmost southern extremity of the Lake of the Woods and then passing directly to the westward A recent investigation of the maps and treaty touching this matter have brought to light the fact that the boundary line after reaching the lake, passes through one half of its centre, thence westward up an extensive bay or arm then directly south again, until it reaches the meridian, and then continues to the west. The upshot of the story is that Minnesota has a big lump of valuable land which she did not know belonged to her, and that she has full command of the Lake of the Woods

COUNCIL MEETING.—Council met last evening. Full Board Mr Sutton in the Chair. Minutes of last meeting read and approved

PETITIONS

Of Mr Smith, referred Of Mr Perkins, granted Of Mr Jeffries, granted Of Mr Blanchard, relating to water on the public square, referred

REPORT

A number of reports from the committee on accounts and current expenses were read and adopted

The committee on streets and public property reported progress relating to fencing the public square

The city collector reported for the month of January $601 received He also reports two writs of mandamus served upon him Referred to City Attorney

BILLS AND ACCOUNTS

Bills of C H Myers, for lead pipe plumbing, etc, amounting to $17 35, referred to the committee on accounts.

Bill of M Thorn $4, and J Butler $3 for shoveling snow off cistern tops and opening them, were allowed. Rhodes & Sims, $10 00 allowed; A M Sharkey, $25, allowed; R Pittock, rent of Engine House, $30, allowed Rhodes & Sims, according to contract, $1?50 allowed J F McCoy, $ 5, allowed, J C Forman, $270, allowed Gas Company for light of Council room, $1 25, allowed; Gas Company, $160 for lighting streets referred, T A Austin $102, services in council referred J R Martin, expenses in law suits, referred

Councilman Dodge called for the ordinance providing for an Engine House for Company No 2

The President called upon Mr Lucas to take the Chair

[Just at this time the Council was left abruptly without a quorum]

MERCANTILE LIBRARY.—The subscribers to the Library Fund met last evening to perfect their plan of organization, and receive reports of committees As the plan proposed by the former committee seemed objectionable to many of the subscribers, the action of the last meeting was reconsidered, in order to obtain the sense of all the members. After considerable discussion as to the various plans proposed, the whole subject was referred to a new committee, consisting of Messrs William Strong, E. W McGraw, A M Starr, Mr Calef and L. H Wakefield, who are authorized to consider any suggestions the subscribers may wish to advance

BOUNTIES.—A telegram from the Provost Marshal General's Office, Washington, dated January 13th, says Congress has extended the period to which the large bounties of $300 and $400 will be paid, for enlisting and re-enlisting, to the 1st of March. Now is the time, before that date, for all to enlist, who wish to avail themselves of a handsome bounty. The Oregon Cavalry will have stirring work to perform in scouts against the Snake Indians next summer

WILLAMETTE THEATRE.—The Theatre was again well filled last night to witness the performance of Evadne, Mrs Hayne, as usual, was superb Mr. Waldron as the villain, Ludovico, rendered it exceedingly well, while Miss Goodrich, as Olivia, was excellent. The other characters were ably sustained by the Company This evening Love's Sacrifice will be rendered We would hint that seats had better be secured early. The great five act play of Court and Stage is in rehearsal.

A STANDING COUNCIL.—When our reporter left the Council Chamber last night the session had not been adjourned, owing to the following business Councilman Dodge called for the ordinance providing for an Engine House for Company No 2 Mr. President called upon Mr. Lucas to take the Chair. Councilmen Knott, Mounastes and Sutton had business outside and left; having no quorum the business came to a stand-still, and we suppose they are still in session, waiting for something to turn up

FROM THE STEAMSHIP.—The Julia finished discharging the balance of the cargo of the Oregon at three o'clock yesterday morning, and soon after arrived at her landing in this city. The steamship left the mouth of the Willamette at 9 o'clock A M In addition to what was reported yesterday she has five tons of bacon, and 2,940 boxes of apples. The treasure list was swelled to an aggregate of $143,859, as follows W F. & Co.,(reported,) $100,000 Baum Brothers, $18,000, Ladd & Tilton, $6,000, by other parties $19,859

THE Senator, under command of Captain Kellog, still continues to ply regularly between this and Oregon City, but as the Ukiah does a portion of the carrying, her loads are not so bulky She made a very pretty landing at Vaughn's wharf, where her passengers went ashore, and then dropping down to the steamship landing discharged some sixty-five tons of freight, last evening

THE Wilson G Hunt was detained considerable over her hour for leaving yesterday morning, in consequence of the thick fog She was very well loaded with freight, and a large number of passengers, and several mules and horses The Cascades portage is again assuming its wonted activity about the time of the arrivals and departures of the Hunt

NEEDS ATTENTION.—For the past two days a trap has been kept open in the covering of a cistern on First at the junction of Taylor streets, which is very liable to cause somebody damage We have a Street Commissioner whose duty it is to attend to such matters and we would call his attention to it.

ANOTHER NEW HOTEL.—We hear of another new hotel, soon to be erected on the corner of Front and Morrison Portland will soon be sufficient in accommodations for the inner

IMPOTENT REBEL ABUSE OF THE PRESIDENT.—The Richmond Examiner of the 14th December says

We this morning gratify the curiosity of our readers with the Message of Abraham, Lincoln Recovering but recently from an attack of the small pox, he is even [illegible] for the Message It is but another exhibition of his weakness and folly Why his Cabinet will permit him to make such a fool of himself and render their country an object of contempt and ridicule through out the world can only be accounted for on the supposition that it is the easiest way to get rid of him They therefore permit him to have the freest and fullest use of his pen. To his proclamation of amnesty and reconstruction we especially invite the attention of our readers and when the [illegible] are ready to submit [illegible] ask the privilege of announcing it to their Father Abraham At the present we have not the space to review the Message, and do not know that we shall hereafter have time but as there are some features in it which mac[illegible] a Yankee we may on future occasions recur to this Message

THE CANADIAN PILOT.—S R Mallory Secretary of the rebel Navy, tell this in his late report to the rebel Congress

"During the months of July and August I sent twenty seven commissioned officers and forty trusty worthy petty officers to the British Provinces with orders to organize an expedition and co-operate with army officers in an attempt to release the Confederate prisoners on Johnson's Island in Lake Erie; [illegible] I learned that the arrangements made were such as to insure the most complete success A large amount of money had been expended, and just as our gallant naval officers were about [illegible] on this expedition the English authorities gave information to the enemy and thus prevented the execution of one of the best planned enterprises of the present war"

ONE hundred years ago, Ben Franklin, Postmaster General of the American Colonies made an official inspection of the principal routes in his gig.—Exchange

Ben Franklin and his mode of traveling would be a vast improvement upon the style of conducting the business of the Pacific Coast postal agency.—Statesman

"EMBROIDERED ON A SEWING MACHINE?—I was not aware that such elegant work could be done in such a manner,' remarked one lady to another in our presence lately She examined the trimming of a charming cloak which adorned its fair owner. 'Oh yes,' was the reply, 'it can be done, and beautifully as you perceive, but only by one of the Sewing Machines in use—the GROVER & BAKER!'

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®
NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Written for the Daily Morning Oregonian.

Now or Never

Patriots, now or never let your hearts be strong,
For the crisis cometh as the days grow long;
Soon a double battle will have to be fought—
God is going to measure worthiness by might.

Not that God is willing that the Right should fail
Not that He will let the Wrong at last prevail
For His day is coming, be it late or soon
He is only waiting till we ask the boon.

Yet [illegible] must we ask [illegible]
Heart and hand [illegible]
Full of faith and patience [illegible]
But without endless [illegible] apathy.

Patriots, for your country will you honor gain?
Wish you it united in love and peace again?
Have you for the present either hope or prayer
Lo, the grain is ready when the reapers are.

Can you doubt one moment who will win at last
Shall the present languish as has done the last?
Right is nearer victory now than e'er before
If there were but heroes as there were of yore.

Patriots, now or never gird yourselves with power
Make yourselves the heroes of the coming hour
On the hills the laurels flourish green and strong
If you will not wear them they shall crown the Wrong.

In the double battle that you have to fight
God is going to measure worthiness by might!
Let your deeds be worthy and undying claim
For your fellows freedom—for your country fame!

FORT DALLES, OREGON, Feb 1st 1864. H. C.

Gideon Lamb

"Harri't, do you think you can make my meetin' coat last another year?" The speaker was a tall, grizzly man, and looked not unlike a patriarch. "Sister Harri't" took the threadbare garment, and holding it at arm's length, gave it a long and critical examination. But while they are peering about the button holes, and sighing over the secession of warp from woof, let us look about the house a little. It does not differ materially from other farm houses in Rhode Island. It is very old, with a long, low roof. Outside, large boulders of almost colossal size everywhere greet the eye. One stands at the corner of the fence and is used for a horse block. Within the house how very primitive is every article of furniture. In that great fire place wood has cheerily crackled for more than a hundred years in delightful unconsciousness of stoves. Oh, well, it rests my eye to look into that old fashioned apartment. But the most antique thing of all is that giant man so anxiously eyeing his Sunday coat. He might have come over in the Ark; indeed now that I think of it, he does resemble Japhet in Rossiter's painting of Noah and his family, which I once had the pleasure of seeing. But he is dressed in a blue and white overfrock, is barefooted, and holds his ox goad over his shoulder, from which is suspended a pair of boots. "Will it dew, Harri't?" The sister, a true New England woman and fertile in the art of "making do," probed the wounds in the forlorn garment, and spoke hopefully of its recovery. "I guess I can make it last a spell, Gideon; I'll try." And taking down her shears, she went at her work with the zeal of a martyr. Gideon Lamb, unlike the original Japhet, was an old bachelor, nor was he as poor as his nervous anxiety about his Sunday coat would seem to indicate; for if you follow him on his journey, you will see that he has a good yoke of oxen, and a load of ship timber, which he is drawing to the Pint—the nearest seaboard town. On he trudges, for he is too thoughtful of the oxen to ride, now speaking a kind word to old Duke, now an admonitory one to old Darby, and then relapsing into silence, and perhaps thinking of "Harri't" at home, or may be of some old sweet-heart. What! was Gideon Lamb ever in love? Did he flirt with Shem's wife, or did that sparkling brunette, Mrs. Ham, have played the coquette with him before the flood? No, but there is a wilful maid living all alone, half a mile back from the road, who persists in saying that she might now be Mrs. Gideon Lamb, had she not shocked him by the extravagant habit of wearing a pink silk neck ribbon. And now, as he goes past the bars, and sees the lane that leads to her lonely dwelling, he gives a little sigh, prompted it may be, by pity for her—it may be by a stronger emotion. He trudges along, pitying the poor oxen, wondering if the birds are going crazy with their singing, wishing "folks warn't so extravagant, and then there wouldn't be so much want," until he comes within sight of the "Pint," and then he begins an elaborate toilet. He sits down on a stone and draws on his boots; he takes off the blouse and displays a second Sunday coat that baffles description; he runs his fingers through his grizzly hair, jumps on his load and is away. Having disposed of his timber, he walks into the Bank—don't be alarmed for his sanity, dear reader—he is a bank director, and owns shares in this and other monied institutions to the amount of thirty thousand dollars, and his head is a little clearer in financial matters than any one's else. And so, his business done, he starts for home, stopping at the old familiar stone to take off his boots, and then, eating his luncheon, he and the oxen trudge along in right good fellowship. On his arrival "Harri't" triumphantly displayed the coat. "There, Gideon, mother couldn't have beat that, now, could she?" "Wa'al, no, Harri't, I b'lieve you've got a knack at dewing things. I like to look respectable, but I tell you what I don't want to be extravagant. You know it says in the Bible, 'Consider the lilies of the field,' they don't stand fixin' up—they put on just what comes handy, and yet Solomon in all his glory warn't arrayed like one of 'em." Some might have thought his allusion to the gorgeous raiment of the lilies very unfortunate, but it did not strike Harriet so. She patted a johnny-cake on the board and put it down before the coals to bake, she hung the iron tea kettle on the fire, and busied herself with her brother's supper. "Harri't," said Gideon, "I've seen Elder Cole down to 'The Pint,' to-day, and guess what he wants us to dew? He wants us to give him an outline of our family history—our father's and mother's death—for somethin' he's gittin' up. I knew I couldn't make nothin' of it, but I knew you could, Harri't—you can do anything." "Why Gideon," said Harriet, "but then if he wants it, we'll both try."

There had been a time when this now lonely house had been quite a sheepfold, for the family of Lambs was originally numerous, but these two were all that now survived. "Harri't," in the eyes of her brother, was the embodiment of all that was desirable in woman. There was nothing worth doing that she couldn't do. He had never denied her anything, but her wants were as simple as his. She was fifteen years younger than he, with a clinging, dependent nature that was winding itself every year more closely around this giant brother, until they two seemed to be one. So after supper they began to talk over what year it was that sister Sallie died and brother Joshua, and then the dear old mother, and what father said last, and all together it ended in a fit of weeping. Parsimonious as Gideon Lamb was, to his praise be it said, no one in the neighborhood ever lacked a load of wood or plenty of meal, but velvet bonnets for the minister's wife and gold watches as a surprise gift for the minister were his especial abomination. The family history progressed slowly, for Harri't's pen was uncouth—but when it was done, Gideon said, "it couldn't be beat." It was only a [illegible] of facts, with a strong undercurrent of [illegible] running through it. [illegible] Lamb and his wife walked [illegible] one went quietly through the river, and the other had a wonderful vision of [illegible] standing on its banks [illegible] the funeral sermons and [illegible] sung, where the bodies were laid, and what was written on the tombstones. It was a very simple story and [illegible]

Gideon carried it down to "The Pint," and showed it to the minister, who [illegible] Harriet said [illegible] "Harri't's [illegible] very fair, but as she sat in her [illegible] busy with her patching, dress [illegible] habiliments, one would simply [illegible] plain looking woman [illegible] life. But she still preserved her girlish smile when she talked with her giant brother, and had so much real delicacy that to him she was a thing of beauty—a joy forever.

But years pass away, bringing with them life's stern changes. Children had grown up, old people like autumn leaves had dropped off and gone to decay. Four [illegible] years teach some hard lessons. Gideon Lamb has just returned with his oxen from "The Pint," but he sits alone in that great room, for Harri't is dead—loneliness steals over him. It oppresses him, but how can it be relieved? He thinks of that wilful woman that always boasted she could marry him, but he shakes his head. "Harri't's" place would still be empty. Then there was poor old Widow Lane, but he said to himself [illegible] he'd rather find her in wood and meal, and let her stay where she was. As to young girls, they were out of the question. They'd laugh at him and use up his money. No, indeed, he wouldn't be bothered with none of them." It happened one day that Gideon was down to the Bank in his usual style. He had been reckoning up his accounts to see how much he was worth. "I must be worth not far from fifty thousand dollars," said Gideon, "I wish I hadn't got so much—what shall I do with it?"

At last the rebellion broke out, and it was really a Godsend to poor Gideon. He loved his country, and now in its sore tribulation, he took it to his heart. True, he could not fight for it, for one foot had given out, and every joint had a touch of rheumatism; but he could worry about it and pray for it—for Gideon was truly a praying man. As far as an idea could, it seemed to fill "Harri't's" vacant place. At last he made up his mind to give all his income for one year to the families of volunteers, "provided," as he said, "they'd promise not to be extravagant." Every day he went to "The Pint" to get the news. It happened that just after the defeats of the Peninsula, being sore at heart, he stepped in at Elder Cole's to get a little medicine for the mind. "I tell you what, [illegible] der things look pretty dark. I'm [illegible] glad Harri't's out of the world, afore she know'd about this trouble. Wa'al, ten years ago or so, wasn't a bad time to die." "You're just the man I wanted to see," said the minister.

"You've got a clear head, and here's a case I want you to look through. There was a member of my church by the name of John Clark, who felt it was his duty to enlist. He had a wife and six bright children. He said he felt called of God to go and fight the rebels, and I think he was. After he'd been gone three months, his wife got sick and died, and now poor John has just been killed at Malvern Hill—he died like a hero, too. Now what's to be done with the little ones?" "Is it fur over there?" said Gideon. "No, do you want to see them?" "Wa'al, s'posin' we walk over there." So they went to an humble dwelling in the outskirts of the town, and there they saw the six orphans—the eldest, Amy,—a girl twelve years of age, doing all the work. "Wa'al," said Gideon, "there don't seem to be nothin' extravagant about 'em. I b'lieve I'll take 'em home with me and save the Government a pension. A penny saved is a penny earned, you know, and I've been lonesome ever since Harri't died"—here the voice began to falter—"it's kinder lonesome." So the children tied up their scanty bundles, and jumping into the ox cart rode home with him that very day. I dare say it never occurred to them, as they watched the old man barefooted and limping along with his rude white oak crutch, that there was anything singular in his appearance. They rather liked his looks. Grave and thoughtful as his face was, the curves of his lips had their bits of dry humor about them, that told as plainly as words that he had not forgotten his boyhood. He asked them if they "loved butternut?" and if they "s'posed they'd know huckleberries if they was to see 'em?" When at last they reached the old homestead, their delight knew no bounds. They frolicked and laughed as much as they chose, for there was nothing in Uncle Gideon's manner, a silent man though he was, that rebuked them. He took great pains to send them to school, for, as he told them, "A little book learnin' comes good, for who knows but one of these days, some on you will want to be gittin' up a family history of your own, just as sister Harri't did." It is Sabbath morning and old Uncle Gideon has on his 'meetin' coat." It is the identical one his sister mended ten years ago, and looks about as fashionable now as it did then. Amy Clark is affectionately brushing it very much as Harri't would have done. A kindly look lights up Uncle Gideon's benevolent gray eyes. He gazes on the little group, and fancies he sees in each child, "a little look like Harri't." Who will say our venerable friend is not in the highest sense a patriot, and if we had a regiment of army contractors of the same stamp, would it not be a blessing to our country?—Portland Transcript.

No USE FOR BIG GUNS.—Johnny Reb was looking at one of our guns and remarked that he "didn't think that the Yanks would use them much longer." "Why not?" inquired one of the Feds. "Because," said he, "the Confederacy is getting so narrow that you'll fire clear over it and hit your men on the other side."

AYER'S

CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BRIMFIELD, MASS., 20th Dec. 1855.

DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints. EBEN KNIGHT, M. D.

A. B. MORTLEY, Esq., of UTICA, N. Y., writes: "I have used your PECTORAL myself and in my family ever since you invented it, and believe it the best medicine for its purpose ever put out. With a bad cold I should sooner pay twenty-five dollars for a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy."

Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

SPRINGFIELD, MISS., Feb. [illegible]

BROTHER AYER: I will cheerfully certify your PECTORAL is the best remedy we possess for the cure of [illegible] and the chest diseases of children. We of your fraternity in the South appreciate your skill, and commend your medicine to our people.

HIRAM CONKLIN, M. D.

AMOS LEE, Esq., MONTEREY, [illegible] writes, 3d Jan., 1856: "I had a tedious Influenza, which confined me in doors six weeks; took many medicines without relief; finally tried your PECTORAL by the advice of our clergyman. The first dose relieved the soreness in my throat and lungs; less than one half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies, as the poor man's friend."

Asthma or Phthisic, and Bronchitis.

WEST [illegible]

SIR: Your CHERRY PECTORAL is performing marvellous cures in this section. It has relieved several from alarming symptoms of consumption, and is now curing a man who has labored under an affection of the lungs for the last forty years.

HENRY L. PARKS, Merchant.

A. A. RAMSEY, M. D., ALBION, [illegible] writes, Sept. 6, 1855: "During my practice of many years I have found nothing equal to your CHERRY PECTORAL for giving ease and relief to consumptive patients, or curing such as are curable."

We might add volumes of evidence, but the most convincing proof of the virtues of this remedy is found in its effects upon trial.

Consumption.

Probably no one remedy has ever been known which cured so many and such dangerous cases as this. Some no human aid can reach; but even to those the CHERRY PECTORAL affords relief and comfort.

ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY, [illegible]

DOCTOR AYER, LOWELL: I feel it a duty and a pleasure to inform you what your CHERRY PECTORAL has done for my wife. She had been five months laboring under the dangerous symptoms of Consumption, from which no aid we could procure gave her much relief. She was steadily failing, until Dr. Strong, of this city, where we have come for advice, recommended a trial of your medicine. We bless his kindness, as we do your skill, for she has recovered from that day. She is not yet as strong as she used to be, but is free from her cough, and calls herself well.

Yours with gratitude and regard,
ORLANDO SHELBY, of SHELBYVILLE.

Consumptives, do not despair till you have tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is made by one of the best medical chemists in the world, and its cures all round us bespeak the high merits of its virtues.—Philadelphia Ledger.
